TXM Technology prides itself on the design of bespoke recruitment solutions that benefit both our clients and candidates. Our approach is consultative which maintains our brand promise of always going The Xtra Mile.

After Serving 12 years with the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers as an Avionics Engineer working on both Lynx and Gazelle aircraft, Steve progressed into a career as a Technical Recruiter. Over the last ten years Steve has built a reputation as a professional and dedicated recruiter, specialising in PMO recruitment including Programme Managers, Directors, PM's, BA's and Change Management. Steve works closely with his clients to understand their needs and can deliver a bespoke service designed to save clients time, money and hassle.

With his wealth of management and recruitment experience, Steve uses his valuable expertise to coach, mentor and manage members of his team, motivating them to achieve the same level of success and service as he has successfully delivered.

Steve's division operates within but not limited to Infrastructure, Virtualisation & Storage, Application & Software Development, IT Security and Project & Programme Management across all industry verticals. This cross-industry coverage provides a current, warm candidate pool to draw upon.

With the IT market being candidate driven there is a large emphasis on networking to deliver the best talent in the market. TXM Technology not only uses traditional, mainstream recruitment methods, the business is also passionate about our consultants understanding and owning their markets therefore actively target, encourage referrals and networking extensively. Working with both exclusive and passive candidates is second nature to us.

Steve believes in a very structured, open and honest recruitment process with clear channels of communication, which is important to both clients and candidates alike.

What people say

Client: "I have worked with Steve since 2002, and time after time Steve has continually delivered excellent quality candidates. Steve takes the time to understand not just the client's requirements, but also the working environment so that he can place the most suited candidates. Steve has always been totally open and honest with me and never tried to upsell for his benefit."

Client: "Steve worked on a number of challenging recruitment needs for us last year. He worked tirelessly in finding us some great candidates to suit our needs and was the ultimate professional at all times. I wouldn't hesitate to use his services again in the future."
